Reach Up (Great Britain)

In the UK, around 800,000 young people are currently not in education, employment or training. To help address the problem, we joined forces with national charity UK Youth to create Reach Up: a project to help young people gain the confidence and experience needed to feel ready for the workplace. The pilot in 2018 was delivered in Liverpool across four months and worked with 40 young people to empower them with the confidence, skills and experience needed to prepare them for the workplace. This was delivered through a range of scenario-based workshops, confidence building and networking sessions, and experience in a real-life working environment. 94% of the young people who took part in the programme said they now have the knowledge to find a job, and almost 80% increased their confidence and communication.
